Commentary of the manager

Economic indicators improved further in Q2 2021. The Covid-19 health crisis seems to be abating in the EU and the US. But the more dangerous delta variant is causing problems in Australia, Asia, Russia and also in the UK and Portugal. So there is still a big uncertainty if the vaccination of the population will suffice to stop the pandemic. Meanwhile economies are reopening further. Fiscal stimuli provide extra support to economic growth. Monetary policies in the major economic blocs remain very lenient. The US Fed indicated that they might start to increase rates in 2023. This helped to stabilize inflation expectations in the US and also in the Eurozone. Nevertheless the CRB commodity price index in USD increased further by 15%. Producer and consumer prices are sharply rising in the US. The consumer price rise in the Eurozone is also clear but more moderate while core CPI is stable. For the US analysts forecast 6.6% GDP growth and a CPI of 3.5% for 2021. For the Eurozone the growth forecast is 4.5% while inflation will come out at around 1.8%. During Q2 the USD lost 1.1% against the EUR (1.186). Other weakening currencies versus the EUR were JPY (-1.4%), NOK (-1.7%), AUD (-2.4%) and INR (-2.7%). Appreciating currencies were HUF (+3.0%), PLN (+2.5%), CZK (+2.4%), MXN (+1.4%) and SEK (+1.0%). The US crude oil price rose 24% to 73$. Also other commodities such as natural gas (+40%), coffee (+29%), corn (+28%), sugar (+19%), aluminium (+14%) and nickel (+13%) became more expensive. Gold increased by 3% (1770$) and silver added 7% (26.1$).

The markets expect a first rate hike by the Fed already in the second half of 2022. The US 10 year bond yield decreased by 27bp to 1.47% while the yield curve (difference 30 - 2 year) flattened by 41bp to 1.84%. The ECB considers the recovery still uncertain and fragile and the rise in inflation transitory. In the Eurozone yields increased at a moderate pace. The 10 year German bund yield went 9bp higher to -0.21% while the yield curve (difference 30 - 2 year) was stable at 0.95%. The 10 year spread of Italy to Germany widened by 7bp to 1.03%. Credit spreads in USD and EUR narrowed a bit more.

During Q2 2021 the duration of the fund was brought from overweight to neutral. Long maturity government, government related and supranational bonds were sold. Inflation linked bonds from Germany and France across the maturity spectrum were bought. The fixed income portfolio has a very high average quality and liquidity. Cash holdings were increased from 2% to 7%.
